

MEMORIAL DAY WELL OBSERVED.

Smithfield Has a Magnificent
Outpouring for Event
On Monday.

COMPANY C TAKES PART

March to the Various Cemeteries and Help to Straw Flowers on the Graves of the Dead—Some Excellent Addresses Are Delivered.

SMITHFIELD, June 2.—Memorial Day was appropriately observed here Monday. The weather that was so threatening in the early morning turned out to be all that could be desired and the afternoon of the day was an ideal one for the occasion. The parade formed at the Town Hall on Main street at 1 o'clock in the following order:

Smithfield Cornet Band, Sunday Schools, Co. C, 1st Reg. N. G. P. G. A. R. and old soldiers, Citizens and Civic Organizations.

The procession moved by Church street to the L. O. O. F. Cemetery where the graves of comrades including one Confederate comrade were strewn with flowers. Co. C fired a salute over the grave of James Bohrer, while the services were being conducted at this grave. The band assembled around the grave of A. B. Shewalter, a former leader of the band and held a beautiful funeral service to his memory, singing his grave with flowers and playing a solemn dirge, "Beautiful Memories," after which the procession returned and marched by Church street to Main street by Main to the Baptist Cemetery where 41 soldiers of the various wars in which our country has been engaged, lie buried. The services of the G. A. R. were held here at the grave of L. M. Abraham, late Major of the 54th Penna. Inf. At the conclusion of which Co. C saluted the dead by firing three volleys. The bugler of Company C sounded taps on his bugle, after which the procession returned and marched by Main street to the Willy Cemetery where the services at the other cemeteries were repeated.

At the conclusion of the exercises here the procession with the exception of Co. C who had to leave on a train to get home at Uniontown returned and marched to the Baptist Church where the exercises of the day were concluded. A program consisting of recitations and speaking was rendered. The church was tastefully decorated with flowers, flags and bunting. Portraits of General Logan, the originator of Memorial Day, and of Captain A. F. Duncan and James Abraham, two Fayette county boys, adorned the walls. The services were opened with prayer by Rev. Ryan, after which the choir directed by A. J. Smith sang memories of Memorial Day by G. Frolick, then A. J. Smith, commander of Jerry Jones Post No. 541, G. A. R., at the conclusion of a neat and touching introductory read the names of 27 Civil War veterans from Smithfield and vicinity who lost their lives by either being killed in battle or died from disease and wounds or starvation in prison pens of that war: John Debohl, Jerry Jones, Hamilton Bickler, Joel Reed, Ross, Samuels, James Sturgis, Jacob McCann, George Burchinal, Jacob Smith, Caleb Patton, Moses Sangston, James Nicholson, A. F. Duncan, Samuel Higley, Victor Rush, George Koney, George Smith, Philip Hughes.

After several other selections by the choir a recitation by Miss Mary Grubb delivered in a high and creditable manner and the "Flow Song" by 11 children in a way that made it a pleasing feature of the exercises. Commander Smith introduced as orator of the day Hon. R. E. Umbel. The judge had prepared what was no doubt a fine type written address, but which for some cause best known to himself, he concluded not to use and instead delivered an impromptu address which was conceded by all who heard it to be one of the ablest ever delivered here on any former occasion. He got out of the old and worn grooves usually followed by speakers on these occasions and advanced a new line of thought that was instructive and highly entertaining as was attested by the audience crowding forward at its conclusion to shake the speaker's hand and offer their congratulations.

Taking it in all it was one of the best of the many good meetings for which Smithfield is noted in their observance of the day ever held here. Company C on account of the condition of the roads from the rains of the early morning did not make their contemplated parade march from Uniontown but came by trolley to Fair chance and made the march from there over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. They arrived here about 11 o'clock in their regulation uniforms, bright arms and equipments. They made a fine appearance and gave the observance more of a military aspect than usually seen on former occasions here. The company was in command of Captain Ashcraft with First Lieutenant T. J. Jones second in command. They marched to the Town Hall on their arrival where they stacked arms and after a short rest from the fatigue of the march they all sat down to a sumptuous dinner that the Daughters of Rebekah had ready in the hall.

OUT OF ORDER.

The Man Who Laughed at Sothern as Lord Dundreary.

Sothern was once playing Lord Dundreary in a small town whose regular playgoers plumed themselves on their imperturbable demeanor at the theater. A joker who lived in that town had just returned from New York and gravely put in circulation a hint that it was extremely unfashionable to laugh at comedians.

The hint "took." Sothern played the first act in a frigid atmosphere. He could not understand it, but he called the company together before the second act and explained to them to "pitch in and wake 'em up." They did their utmost, but without perceptible result. Utterly beaten, the great laughter maker dived into the dressing room.

Presently the manager of the house joined him.

"Shake, Ned, old boy!" he exclaimed. "You're doin' great. Got 'em sure. Never seen a more delighted audience."

"What?" was the dazed response. "Delighted be hanged! They haven't cracked a smile."

"Laughed, sir?" replied the manager. "I should hope not. There was one man that snickered, but we bonned him out afore he knewed what ailed him."

A Mean Revenge.

A mean revenge was taken by a man whose wife had just eloped. He discovered where the missing couple were living and sent this polite note to the man who had robbed him of his partner:

"Dear Sir—Please find under separate cover one full double set of false teeth, which kindly hand to my late wife, requesting her to return my father's, she having taken same by mistake in the hurry of departure."

Worldly Wisdom.

As there is a worldly happiness which God perceives to be no more than disguised misery, as there are worldly honors which in his estimation are reproach, so there is a worldly wisdom which in his sight is foolishness. Of this worldly wisdom the characters are given in the Scriptures and placed in contrast with those of the wisdom which is from above. The one is the wisdom of the crafty, the other that of the upright; the one terminates in selfishness, the other in charity; the one is full of strife and bitter enmities, the other of mercy and of good fruits.—Blair.

EQUITABLE VALUATIONS FOR THE COKE MERGER.

Big industrial combinations are financed more carefully than they formerly were. Some of the first attempts in this direction were accomplished only by deluging the propositions with water, the smothering out of which has been the chief concern of some corporations ever since.

The United States Steel Corporation is a notable example. Most of its component subsidiary corporations had been liberally watered in their original formation and considerable more water was added when the big corporation was formed; yet the Steel Corporation has paid regular quarterly dividends of 7 1/2 on its preferred stock, and from time to time 2 and 4 on its common, besides paying 5 1/2 interest on its bonded debt. It has also accumulated an immense surplus fund, in spite of the vast sums it has expended for betterments which have for the most part been charged off as expenses. This policy has been added to the value of its properties, to say nothing of the unearned increment which its coal and ore and other natural resources have added. It has today its capitalization on a solid basis. Steel stocks have in consequence become a favorite investment both at home and abroad. They have long been sold in the London market and last week they were listed on the Paris Bourse.

THE STEEL CORPORATION IS AN EXAMPLE OF WHAT CONSOLIDATION CAN DO.

It is the aim of the architects of the Connelville coke merger to make its stock a good investment from the beginning of operations. It is their design to put all the coke properties in on an equitable basis. Competent and disinterested appraisers have been selected to carefully examine and conscientiously appraise each and every property under option. These appraisers began their work today.

One of the chief objections to the coke merger was the mere suspicion that some operators were to receive exorbitant prices for the plants. The persons fostering this suspicion overlooked the fact that the prices have already been agreed upon for any of the plants; that none of them have yet been purchased; and, it may be added, none of them will be purchased until all are equitable prices.

It is reasonable to presume that the underwriters want a certain portion of the new corporation's stock to be taken by the coke men now engaged in the business. They want them to stay in the business in order to insure practical and economical operation; and in a large combination like the proposed coke merger there are plenty of good places for good men.

To make the stock acceptable to the operators who are wanted in the business it will be necessary to show them: 1. That the stock is not highly watered; 2. That everybody will come in on the same general basis of value; 3. That the merger is sufficiently strong to accomplish all its aims in the way of insuring stability in the trade, supporting prices in dull seasons and insuring a steady, safe and profitable business. All this may be accomplished beyond peradventure: 1. By fair and equitable prices for the properties taken over; and 2. By good management, which means economical operations, minimum costs and maximum earnings.

To assist in attaining these desirable ends the appraisers are put on to personally inspect and inventory each and every optional plant with a view to ascertaining its physical conditions, its earning powers, and its fair value.

This data will be submitted to the underwriters, who, we are advised and assured, are eager to enter the deal and furnish all the funds necessary to carry it through. IF THEY ARE CONVINCED THAT IT IS A MONEY MAKER, but the financials may buy unless prices are fair, and they will be largely guided by the report of the appraisers. If, therefore, any option prices are extravagant, the operators giving them will probably be asked to modify them reasonably, and in case of their refusal to do so the proper ties will be dropped. If the operators are wise, there will be no rejection on this account.

It is not only the aim of the merger people to consolidate the coke business, but to accomplish that consolidation on such a basis that it will be apparent to every coke operator that he is getting a square deal, and that he will be not only willing but eager to take stock in the consolidation and REMAIN A PARTNER IN ITS GREAT POSSIBILITIES FOR PROFIT; and further, that the financiers who agree to underwrite the merger, and to take all its unsubscribed stock, will be satisfied that they are making a profitable investment for themselves and for their clients. In the underwriting of modern consolidations, THIS IS THE ONE SURE THING CAPITALISTS HAVE TO BE SHOWN.

A Connelville coke consolidation formed on these lines CANNOT FAIL TO BE AS PROFITABLE AS THE UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION HAS BEEN, and if the $750,000,000 steel merger is formed, as now seems probable, and the coke merger is taken over as a subsidiary interest, THE STOCK WILL HAVE AN IMMEDIATE ENHANCED VALUE.

THE INDUSTRIAL JOURNALS PROVE THE WISDOM OF MERGER.

The following from the American Metal Market has been the subject of a great deal of idle speculation on the part of the industrial press: "It is insisted that the Connelville coke merger will be put through. There are reports that as high as $5,500 per acre is being asked on some of the options, and it is computed that to carry $5,000 an acre, and exhaust the coal in 15 years, would require fully 90 cents per ton of coke in carry interest and extinguish the charges."

In other words, to make the coal not the operator $5,000 per acre, after paying the expenses of operation and the cost of his plant, assuming that the latter will be useless after 15 years, 50 cents per ton above the cost of production will have to be added to the price of the coke.

The cost of production varies largely at the different coke plants, ranging all the way from 97 cents to $1.37 per ton, but assuming $1.10 as an average it appears that according to these calculations Connelville coke should always sell at not less than $2.00 per ton to net the operators $5,000 per acre for his coal through operation.

During the greater portion of the past eighteen months coke has sold down in the neighborhood of $1.25 to $1.75, which would net the operators from $825 to $1,375 per acre for their coal, which is from one-third to one-half of what it is actually worth in the present market. Some of the operators whose costs are higher, and whose prices were even less have been actually giving their coke away.

The conditions under which they operated have existed a number of times in the past and are not unlikely to occur again. Within our recollection coke has sold as low as 50 cents per ton. Another boom is undoubtedly impending, but no man can tell how long it will last. Edward H. Hartman, the Wizard of Wall Street warns us that we are only going up to come down again, and that the disastrous results of the fall will be measured by the number of suicides we now see around.

There is only one safe way for the Connelville coke operators to avoid being battered and broken by such a fall, and that is to combine their interests in such a coke merger as that now under consideration. This is proven, not only by the figures, but also by the experiences of the past.

THE TOWN COUNCIL NEEDS A LEGAL PILOT.

The Town Council raised some interesting legal questions last night, but it didn't seem to have any advisers present to put the members straight. Perhaps the most peculiar question was the Penn avenue difficulty. After being viewed by the Burgess, and after several regular meetings had been held, the matter was taken up again and an attempt was made to pass the ordinance over the veto.

There is some dispute as to the vote, some saying it was 10 to 5 and others 9 to 5; but it doesn't make any difference, since the law requires a two-thirds majority of the whole Council, and the whole Council as at present constituted numbers 16 members.

However, the ordinance would have been illegal and ineffective if all the members of the Council had voted for it, since it is also the law that the veto must be considered at the first regular meeting after it has been presented.

It is difficult to try a forgery case with neither of the principals present.

The Town Council has awakened to the fact that the borough is in debt. The Republican administration of two years ago have been painfully aware of the fact. The greatest trouble the Republic had was in finding out how much the borough did owe.

Philadelphia is winking this week.

Scottdale's wet Memorial Day nearly submerged a Connelville visitor.

He is not and never has been pledged or committed to the one-term rule. The policy generally recognized throughout the State to reflect Judges will in this instance operate to the advantage of the people of Fayette county. His experience will be of inestimable value in looking after and caring for the public interests.

The people know that he is competent and qualified and that he has always been prompt, earnest, faithful, impartial and fearless in the discharge of his duties and has decided all matters coming before him strictly in accordance with his understanding of the law and the facts.

He has always been an earnest, consistent Democrat and has the confidence of all political parties and there is a strong conviction being freely expressed to the effect that if any Democrat in the county can overcome the large Republican majority and be elected to this important position, he can; and that is the reason why practically all of the Democratic lawyers and the workers throughout the county, who have the interest and success of the party at heart, are earnestly for him.

The Tax on the Types. Tribles. Washington Observer. The children of Washington county are not likely to see many 20-cent pieces. This class of demands will probably be as the Pennsylvania State Governor Stuart signed the act which provided a tax of 2 1/2 in every county in which a band of spurious temporary money.

This must take out a license from the County Treasurer and for this he is entitled to a fee of fifty cents. The license must be renewed every year. The penalty for a keeper who is found without a license is a fine of from $10 to $100 or a sentence to jail for 30 days. This penalty can be imposed on every operator of the band.

This law was intended to rid Pennsylvania of what have proved in some neighborhoods to be a pestiferous nuisance. It is likely to have that effect.

Prohibition That Does Not Prohibit. The county gets the money from the county's 20-cent tax on the sale of liquor. After being viewed by the Burgess, and after several regular meetings had been held, the matter was taken up again and an attempt was made to pass the ordinance over the veto.

LOWER REVISION NOT PLEDGED

But Dingley Rates Will be Reduced, Says Lodge.

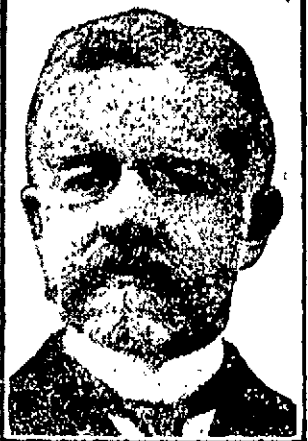

COTTON SCHEDULE DISCUSSED

Senior Senator From Massachusetts Defending the Industries of New England. Says No Great Fortunes Are Made in Cotton Manufacture.

Washington, June 2.—Taking up the cotton schedule as the first tariff matter for consideration, Mr. Aldrich proposed amendments reducing from 25 to 20 per cent ad valorem the minimum duty that may be charged on spool thread of cotton, crochet, darning, embroidery, cottons on spools, etc., and from 20 to 15 per cent the minimum on cotton thread and corded yarn, etc. These amendments were agreed to.

Citing comments on the tariff by prominent Republican speakers and declarations of the platform at the last national Republican convention to show that there was no pledge of a revision of customs duties downward, Mr. Lodge undertook to show that it had been the policy of the party to uphold protection as an offset to cheap foreign labor.

"In point of fact," said Mr. Lodge, "the revision on which we are engaged is a revision downward. There have been 379 reductions as compared with the Dingley law and 33 increases. Taking up the question of merchandise, Mr. Lodge said that at times the cost of the process was as high as 12 cents a yard and in many cases as much as 3 and 4 cents. Yet in all the cases the bill provides a duty for merchandise of 1 cent a square yard.

"These processes," said Mr. Lodge, "were computed on the basis of the Dingley bill was framed. They are deriving out of market much of the silk goods formerly brought to our markets."

Quoting statements of dividends of mills in Great Britain, which, he said, were greater than those of the New England mills, Mr. Lodge declared that large earnings are not always found in a protected country. Some of the large dividends quoted by senators as being paid by cotton mills, the Massachusetts senator said, resulted from real estate holdings or from exceptional good fortune in buying cotton or in the sale of special goods that happened to catch the public fancy. The great fortunes, he said, had not been made in New England or in New England industries.

Referring to advances in prices, Mr. Lodge said a great influence to that end is overlooked in discussions. The addition of $200,000,000 annually to the gold currency, he said, accounted for much of this advance in prices. In thirteen years the gold currency in this country had increased 50 per cent. "You cheapen your standard of value and that means an advance in the prices of commodities measured by this standard," he said.

The only exception he found was where there was an over-supply in the articles which had failed to advance in value. These failures, he said, or the tariff had affected the prices of commodities, in his opinion.

ALLOWS A REBATE

Cummins's Income Tax Amendment Eliminates Double Taxation.

Washington, June 2.—Senator Cummins introduced his income tax amendment to the tariff bill. It provides for a tax of 2 per cent on all incomes of individuals or corporations over $5,000 a year.

A feature is included which is intended to eliminate double taxation by allowing a rebate to the individual stockholder of a corporation whose dividend assessment has been paid through the corporation itself.

Texas Inventor in the Field.

Brownsville, Tex., June 2.—The first successful flight of an aeroplane ever made in Texas occurred when Prentiss Newman, an inventor, ascended about seventy-five feet and covered a distance of 300 yards in his machine.

WRIGHTS NOT ASTONISHED

Zeppelin's Fast Only Beginning of Successful Aerial Navigation.

Dayton, O., June 2.—Across the Atlantic by air is not only a possibility, but a probability of the immediate future, according to Wilbur Wright, who commented upon the wonderful flight of Count Zeppelin's dirigible.

"No one can say how rapid will be the development of the dirigible or the aeroplane," said Wright. "Count Zeppelin's flight does not astonish me. The most remarkable feature is that he has not done as well before this. Though working on different lines, we have many problems in common, the most important of which is the mastery of the ever-changing air currents."

"I think we may look for an astonishingly rapid development now that the basic principle has been established, and a year from now may see a trans-Atlantic trip successfully negotiated."

MAY BE TREASURE SHIP.

Much Agitation by Discovery in the Delaware River.

Chester, Pa., June 2.—Government officials are agitated over the discovery of an obstruction in the Delaware river near Port Mifflin which they think may prove to be the English treasure ship which went down during the war of 1812. It is known that there is a boat at the bottom of the river at that point.

While the government boat Catalina was working in the vicinity, the suction pump became clogged, and when it was brought to the surface it was found to contain several fancy and costly helmets, presumably worn by the English soldiers.

"This discovery has led to the belief that one of the boats of the English government which brought gold to this country to pay its soldiers during the war of 1812 and which was sunk at this point has been found."

CROWD CHEERS.

Junkin, Iowa Murderer, Sentenced to Die on Scaffold.

Centerville, Ia., June 2.—John Junkin, a negro, was found guilty of the murder of Clara Rosen, an Ottumwa choir singer, and was immediately sentenced to be hanged on July 29, 1910, by John M. A. Roberts. The jury was out nearly four hours.

There was an immense crowd awaiting the verdict and as the last words were read by the clerk a shout went up in the courtroom and was taken up by the crowd in the courthouse square.

Junkin shortly after serving a prison term along Clara Rosen at Ottumwa on the night of Feb. 5. He had her to death with a saw while she was returning from the home of a sister. He dragged the body into an excavation, where the mutilated and mistreated body was found next morning.

OBJECTED TO WIFE'S RIDE.

Mrs. Gould's Drive With Prince Riled Mr. Gould.

New York, June 2.—That Howard Gould made complaint when his wife rode with Prince Mohamed Ali, brother of the Khedive of Egypt, in Cairo in 1902, was one of the declarations in a deposition filed in Mrs. Gould's suit for separation.

The deposition was made by Mrs. Alice S. Bankhead, wife of Lieutenant Henry M. Bankhead of Fort McPherson, Ga. Mrs. Bankhead was formerly a ward of General John G. Long, who was then American consul at Cairo. In her deposition Mrs. Bankhead said that General Long arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Gould to visit the Khedive's palace and that Mrs. Gould drove with the prince at the prince's request. Mr. Gould, Mrs. Bankhead said, complained about this.

MORGAN GETS THE CREDIT

For Opening Up French Investment Market to American Securities.

Paris, June 2.—The negotiations for the lifting of the shares of the United States Steel corporation on the Paris bourse has been officially concluded. Six influential banking institutions have bought outright a large block of the stock and will offer it to the public. The credit for the lifting of steel coupons on the Paris bourse belongs primarily then, it is thought, to J. P. Morgan, who has been in Paris personally directing the campaign.

The circumstances were propitious. Those French credit institutions which heretofore were hostile to American stocks have been astounded at the recovery shown since the recent financial depression in the United States, which French financiers predicted would end in complete collapse.

SWIMS WITH BROKEN ARM

Man Knocked From Freight Into Canal Reaches Shore Safely.

Chicago, June 2.—James E. Miller of Garrett, Ind., about thirty feet with a broken arm after he was knocked from the top of an eastbound freight train into the Indiana harbor canal. Miller is a bricklayer and he was brushed from the top of his car by a train on the canal bridge. He dropped into the canal twenty feet below, unconscious. The injured man sank, but the cold water revived him and he paddled to the embankment with his good arm.

Accidentally Shot Lying in Bed.

MAGNATE JAILED FOR CONTEMPT.

The Books of Copper Company Must Be Produced.

SAID TO BE SPIRITED AWAY

Vice President Baglin of United Copper Company Will Remain in the Tombs Until Missing Evidence in Helme Case Is Brought to Court.

New York, June 2.—George Baglin, vice president of the United Copper company, was taken to the Tombs prison and must remain there, under an order of Judge La Courbe of the United States district court, until the missing books of the company, which contain the evidence upon which the federal district attorney seeks to convict F. Augustus Helme, are produced. A similar punishment also hangs over Sanford Robinson, a prominent director of the company, whose case will be further considered by Judge La Courbe.

Both men are alleged to have permitted the spiriting away of the books that were under subpoena. Baglin testified before the grand jury that he had overheard Robinson and one of the Helme brothers discussing the removal of the books and he interposed an objection.

"Nothing remains for me to do but to commit you for contempt," said Judge La Courbe after hearing Baglin's admission. "You had no right to stand idly by while men were plotting the removal of books wanted in a grand jury investigation. An officer or an employee cannot so act with impunity."

Baglin was visibly affected by the sentence of the court. He was allowed to communicate with his wife and lawyer, then he was led to the Tombs.

FEW STREET CARS RUN

Most of Them Still Remain in Quaker City Barns.

Philadelphia, June 2.—The first ordinary business day since the beginning of the street car men's strike closed with conditions practically unchanged. The traction company notified the men that those who had been discharged for striking would be taken back if they reported for work at once. Men who had been discharged for striking offices in the past were also welcomed back. By the aid of the recruits hired in this and other cities the company was enabled to run 700 of its 3,300 cars until midnight, when no further attempt was made to continue the traffic.

The first disturbance in the central part of the city occurred today, when a new employee, carrying a high building at Chestnut and Thirtieth streets, showed nails and other missiles on a passing car.

New York Agency Busy.

New York, June 2.—More than 1,000 men made application at a local employment office for work on the Philadelphia lines in the places left vacant by strikers. The local agents were instructed to engage 600 men.

"NEVER AGAIN," HE CRIED

As He Plunges Knife Into Girl to Whom He Was Once Engaged.

New York, June 2.—Miss Mary Schaefer, age twenty-six, was eating in a Chinese restaurant in Third avenue with a young man when a man to whom she said she had been engaged to marry entered and stabbed her twice with a knife, once in the shoulder and again in the arm.

"You won't play another man false," he assailed her, as he plunged the knife into her. "For I guess this will send you to the cemetery."

HER CLOTHING TORN OFF

Mrs. Tintoff Narrowly Escapes Death in Laundry.

Zanesville, O., June 2.—Mrs. F. O. Tintoff, member of a picnic party at Zanesville, park, narrowly escaped death when inspecting a laundry with a number of friends.

Her skirt caught in machinery and she was stripped of all her clothing, but sustained no physical injury. She had to borrow garments from friends to enable her to appear in public.

MUST LEAVE CHINESE QUARTER.

New York, June 2.—In their efforts to reform Chinatown the police have served notices on a majority of the white women living there that they must move away immediately. A number of these women are the wives of reputable Chinatown merchants and these have suffered because of the depredations of other white women for many years have been the deans of evil places. About one hundred and fifty white women are affected by the new order.

SOME HAPPENINGS ON THIS SPOT.

New York, June 2.—Two men were mysteriously shot and seriously wounded at the same spot within five hours and in each instance the assailant escaped.

Yale Student Held For Manslaughter.

Stamford, Conn., June 2.—An automobile driven by Joel Ellis Fisher, Jr., Yale, 1911, of New York city, ran down here and killed Harry Christensen, thirteen years old. Fisher was arrested on a charge of manslaughter.

WHITE PLAGUE CURE.

Englishman's Consumption Discovery Told of by W. T. Stead.

What promises to be one of the most valuable discoveries in medical science amounts to nothing less than a speedy and cheap cure for tuberculosis.

The fortunate discoverer is William Doig, head of a noted publishing company in London. Mr. Doig retired from business several years ago, devoting himself entirely to his hobby—medical study.

He first discovered he could cure tuberculosis of the bone and only in recent years he has found a method of applying his discovery to the cure of consumption. The treatment is extremely simple. A poultice containing nitre and chloride (the exact prescription has not yet been announced, but there is no intention on the part of Doig to keep it secret) is placed on the lungs of the patient as near as possible to the organ or membrane that has become prey to the tuberculosis bacilli. In about a week an ulcer is formed, connected by what is called a ray of inflammation with the diseased organ. This forms a kind of duct, through which the mucus-pus is drawn out of the system.

The ulcer needs to be carefully dressed twice a day with a salve, which is also the discovery of Doig. If this is neglected the ulcer spreads, becomes black, and the patient dies. But if it is properly attended to the ulcer steadily works off all diseased matter from the lung until in from four to six months a complete cure is effected.

William Doig has brought his discovery before the American ambassador, who was much interested. It was determined, however, to postpone reporting on the subject until the final series of tests has placed the efficacy of the remedy beyond all dispute. Doig declared that in his practice he has never had a single failure.

As a test case Doig was challenged to undertake the cure of a youth seventeen years old, who was certified to be suffering from advanced tuberculosis in both lungs and also from tuberculosis of the glands of the throat, which rendered it impossible for him to speak except in hoarse whispers. The youth weighed about 100 pounds, and in the opinion of the physicians his death within two years was a foregone conclusion. Nothing daunted, Doig undertook to cure this unpromising case. To the amazement of everyone, the lad is now quite cured. He has put on flesh, he sings merrily at his work, and all trace of tuberculosis has disappeared.

Before the discovery is officially recognized a final test on a larger scale is to be made. Six patients, certified by the doctors to be suffering from unmistakable tuberculosis, are to be placed in a private hospital and subjected to the Doig treatment under close supervision by scientific experts, who will carefully watch each case from first to last. Doig is confident that within six months, barring accidents, he will have cured all six sufferers. The cost of the experiment is estimated to be $10,000.

The treatment is not painful, although somewhat troublesome. When the ulcer is started a dressing of nitre and chloride is applied. No internal medicine is administered, nor do patients need to be bled during the treatment. In the case of the youth whose cure has been described he remained at work all the time—William T. Stead, London Correspondent New York American.

SHE HATED TO DO IT

"Sweet Country Girl" Gets Away With About Everything.

Chicago, June 2.—"Dear Mr. Patterson, I hate to do this, but I guess I must. You were good and kind to me. I hope you will not miss the money much."

This is the note John Patterson found when he returned to his room in Erie street, which he had given up for a homeless, hungry and penniless young woman. He also found that $85 was gone from his dresser and that his landlady, who was robbed of $200 and various articles, wanted to throw him into the street.

"She had fruckles and had the appearance of a country girl," said Patterson. "I never was so surprised in all my life."

SAYS HE'S THE ARCHDUKE

Chicago Man Identifies Johann Salvator as Missing Nobleman.

Chicago, June 2.—John Salvator is authorized for the announcement that Alois Jaeger of Chicago, formerly a servant in the employ of Johann Salvator, archduke of Austria, has identified John Salvator, the Painesville machinist, as the missing nobleman.

It was said that Jaeger recognized Salvator immediately upon their meeting. Salvator shook hands with Jaeger and appeared to remember him. Later Salvator said Jaeger was once his favorite servant. The machinist said he engaged Jaeger after renouncing his imperial titles and birthrights.

STORIES OF STEWART

Former Nevada Senator's Exciting Adventure With Indians.

HOW HE AWED A BAD MAN

Experience in a Courtroom With Nevada's Champion Desperado—Examples of His Remarkable Adventurousness.

United States Senator William M. Stewart, who recently died in Washington, distinguished himself for his interest in the Indian question, as all the country knows. Among other things he induced the government to establish an Indian school at Carson. If the senator was like ordinary men, he would have recoiled in the abhorrence of the redskins, for it is owing only to his own nerve, mules and the interposition of heaven that he escaped alive some years ago.

In 1890 Stewart was driving his own wagon, loaded with his law library, from Downville to Carson. Four miles were drawing him at the rate of eight miles an hour, and as he sped through the sagebrush and sunshine he dreamed of fees. The future senator rattled down through the Hueneme pass, crossed the Truckee at Huerfano, a few miles west of Reno, and was rolling along toward Steamboat Springs when he noticed an Indian armed with a rifle in the road ahead of him.

News got over the ground slowly in those days, and Stewart did not hear of the uprising of the reds or received tidings of the Carson defeat, in which nearly a hundred whites had fallen. So when the Plute in his path ruled his hand Stewart pulled up his mules and readily consented to give the savage a ride on the seat beside him. The Indian held his rifle upright before him and talked cheerfully.

The conversation was progressing amiably when another Indian came into view. He was on top of a big rock 200 yards ahead, and he also held a rifle. The two red men exchanged signals, and there was something in their manner of doing it that awoke a feeling of suspicion and uneasiness in Mr. Stewart. "There were more signals, and a look at the face of the Plute beside him from the lawyer's blood, for he saw excellent murder there. The situation broke upon him. The mules were rapidly bringing him near the Indian on the rock, who was evidently getting ready to fire.

Something must be done, and that mighty quick too, Stewart did it. He dropped the reins, in a flash had his arms around his Plute passenger and gave a yell that scared the mules into a mad gallop. Then he held his wriggling prisoner between himself and the enemy on the rock, maintaining that advantage until the mules had run three miles. Again in safety, the problem of what to do with his Indian pressed for solution. A common man would have killed him. But Stewart was an uncommon man and an un-naturally forgiving one. This is what he did. He wrestled the rifle away from the savage, smashed its lock on the wheel and tossed it into the sagebrush. Then the big, six foot lawyer took a good, square look at the perched Plute, hauled off and bit him between the eyes. As Stewart gathered up the reins and checked the mules, the Indian lay flat on his back in the road insensible, with his nose smashed flat.

"I have never yet seen a desperado or man killer who, if he thought an antagonist were ready for him with weapons equal to his own, would not back out of a fight," remarked Senator Stewart some years ago.

"There was Sam Brown, the champion bad man of Nevada in the old days. He was a giant, six foot four inches high and weighed 250 pounds, and as ferocious a looking man as ever mortal eye beheld. Killing was his trade, and one winter in Virginia City he slew sixteen men.

"I had been retained by a client whose interests were opposed to the desperado, and I thought it best on the day of the trial to put a couple of old fashioned desperadoes in my overcoat pockets. When I saw him enter the idea came into my mind that he had come to make use of his latest victim. His favorite weapon was a big bowie knife, and the knowledge that the villain meant to stab me to death made me feel exceedingly uncomfortable. But I knew it would never do to show the creature that he had me scared, and, looking him squarely in the eye, I brought the pockets of my overcoat around to where he would see the full shape of both my desperadoes. My hands were grasping the handles, and I was ready to shoot on the second. These pistols shot with terrific force and would knock down even if they did not kill.

"I saw his eye fall on the weapons. Before this he had been fumbling at his knife, but immediately he ceased, and presently he walked out of the room. When the business was over I found him in a saloon taking a drink. With a smile intended to be amiable he invited me to join him. A week later he asked me to represent him in a mining suit."

It is asserted by friends of Senator Stewart that if his absence of mind could have been cut into strips and pasted together end to end it would reach twice around the globe and the 10 is a double bow-tie. Out on the slope they used to tell a story of how he was hastening one morning to catch a train when he suddenly stopped and said to his companion:

"There, by the way, I've left my watch under my pillow."

"Let's go back and get it," said his friend.

"Hold on," replied the senator; "I don't believe we'll have time," and he drew the watch from his pocket, looked carefully at the face of it, counted the moments and added, "No, we won't have time," and pressed on toward the station, saying, "Oh, well, I guess I can get along for a day without a watch."

It is also related that Senator Stewart dressed himself at a hotel one morning, putting his vest on wrong side out, and in a few moments presented himself at the office, excitedly rubbing the places where the pockets ought to be and complaining that he had been robbed.

Senator Stewart while traveling in Nevada stood on the platform of the coach and was approached by a conductor.

"Senator," began the employee, touching his cap respectfully, "I dislike to remind you of rule 11, which requires passengers to ride inside the coaches."

"I own this road," replied the senator gravely. "But even if I didn't own it am I not a privileged passenger by reason of being a prominent politician?"

"I believe that platforms are for politicians to get in on, but not to stand on," replied the conductor.

The senator stepped through the door at once.

LUNDIN FOR OLD AGE PENSION

Chicagoan Urges Government to Study Systems in Old World.

Representative Fred Lundin of Chicago has introduced in the house a resolution calling upon the speaker to appoint a select committee of seven members to investigate the various systems of old age insurance, old age pension and annuities now in operation in different nations of the world with a view to determining the practicability of establishing some such system in the United States.

Mr. Lundin believes that by some arrangement of insurance, pensioning or annuities provision should be made during youth and middle age for the intricacies of old age.

"Experience has demonstrated," he said the other day, "that there are feasible methods. The need of some such system is greater in the United States, where the people are improvident, than in Europe, where through postal savings banks and other government encouragement the people have acquired the habit of saving and are not spendthrifts."

Mr. Lundin's resolution has been referred to the committee on rules, of which Mr. Cannon is chairman, and he is hopeful of securing a favorable report.

WAGER ON HIS OATS LAND.

Wyoming Farmer Bets $10,000 He Can Beat Any Canadian Farmer.

The national corn exposition officers in Omaha were recently notified by Colonel E. J. Bell of Laramie, Wyo., that he had made a wager with western Canadian farmers that his Wyoming farm would produce more oats per acre than any land in western Canada.

The wager is for $10,000 cash, and the national corn exposition officials will judge the crops. Colonel Bell has for years made a specialty of oats. At the head of the Canadians, who are backing Alberta, is Professor W. H. Fairchild of Lethbridge, Alberta.

The contest, according to Colonel Bell's offer, is open to the entire world and is not limited to Canada alone.

Free Candy For Women on Trains.

The Monon railroad—Chicago, Louisville and New Albany—has an additional attraction for travelers has announced that hereafter in its dining car service a box of candy will be given to each woman. The action may serve to offset the attractions of the Pennsylvania road, which serves tea to its Pullman passengers.

In this world one must be a little too kind to be kind enough.

Pa's Baseball Mood.

When the home team wins Pa grins and grins And warms a little song And says: "Well, well, it's a cinch to tell We'll sail the flag to the mast this year Of the final outcome I have no fear."

Though they once in awhile go wrong! And "You take it around in the kitchen with me."

And Josh her a little and says: "I saw A gown in a window downtown today That'll look pretty dandy on you. And, say."

Your belt, I guess. Wouldn't match the dress. So you'd better order some new headgear. You've only had two so far this year."

And then he'll kiss her again and say, "You just ought to see them home boys play!"

And then she's wise, for who says real sweet, "I know they're a team that can't be beat."

When the home boys lose Pa gets the blues And grumbles about all day And you can't blow it all in, you bet!

"You take it from me, If any one tells you those mutts can play, You tell 'em they're off their base!"

And then he'll go out with a scowling To ma and say: "There ain't no sense in running this ranch at such great expense."

I can't quite see, For the life of me, Where all the money I give you goes! You spend altogether too much on clothes. I work mighty hard for the coin I get, And you can't blow it all in, you bet!

But ma says nothing for quite awhile, And then she gives a sarcastic smile And says: "Take your hoop and roll it away."

I reckon the home team lost today!" —C. P. Macdonald in Chicago Tribune

MISS BEATRICE THAW, HER TITLED FIANCE AND BANK IN WHICH HE IS AN OFFICER

Miss Beatrice Thaw is to be married tomorrow to the Marquis Francesco Thaw. She is the daughter of Alexander Blair Thaw, a half brother of Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White. The family has lived in Rome for the last three years, and it was there that Miss Thaw met her future husband. Relations of the young woman at first formed some objection to the match because of the unhappy outcome of Alice Thaw's marriage to the Earl of Yarmouth, but soon became reconciled and prepared to give her a brilliant wedding. A civil contract in marriage was signed by Miss Thaw and the marquis in London recently, but the religious ceremony will take place at the Thaw villa in Rome, after which the couple will sail for America. It will be the marquis' first visit here. His is one of the oldest families in Italy, and he is an officer in the Bank of Rome. Several members of the Thaw family have gone to Rome to attend the wedding.

"Dorothy!" he cried in protest. Perhaps it was his unquestionable distress that weakened her. Suddenly she yielded, with whatever reason. He was only badly aware of the swish of her skirts behind him. He had no time to look round and see that she got away safely. He had only eyes and thoughts for Calendar and Stryker. They were both about now and running toward him, the one as awkward as the other, but neither yielding a jot of their malignant purpose. He held the picture of it oddly graphic in his memory for many a day thereafter.

To this mental photograph another succeeds of the same scene an instant later, all as it had been before, their relative positions unchanged save that Stryker and Calendar had come to a dead stop and that Kirkwood's right arm was lifted and extended, pointing at the captain.

So forgetful of self was he that it required a moment's thought to convince him that he was really responsible for the abrupt transformation. Incredulously he realized that he had drawn Calendar's revolver and pulled Stryker up short in midstride by the tunic's menace of it as much as by his hoarse cry of warning:

"Stryker, not another foot!"

With this there chimed in Dorothy's voice, ringing bell clear from a little distance:

"Like a flash he wheeled to add yet another picture to his mental gallery. Perhaps two score feet up the side-walk a gate stood open. Just outside it a man of tall and slender figure, rigid as a lance, stood with his back to the wall, his hands behind him, his feet apart, his head bowed, his face turned toward the doorway. With a slight nod toward an open door at the end of the hallway. "For myself, I'll be with you in one moment."

A faint, indulgent smile lurking in the shadow of his white mustache, he watched the young man wheel and dart through the doorway. "Young blood!" he commented audibly and, a trace sadly, "Youth!"

CHAPTER XXIX.

As the door closed Kirkwood swung impulsively to Brentwick with the brief, uneven laugh of fine drawn nerves.

"Good God, sir!" he cried. "You don't know?"

"I can surmise," interrupted the elder man shrewdly.

"You turned up in the nick of time, for all the world like!"

"Harlequin popping through a stage trap?"

"No—an incarnation of the providence that watches over children and fools."

Brentwick dropped a calming hand upon his shoulder. "Your smile seems singularly happy, Philip. Permit me to suggest that you join the child in my study." He laughed quietly, with a slight nod toward an open door at the end of the hallway. "For myself, I'll be with you in one moment."

ing courtesy:

"Do you wish to see me, sir?" The fat adventurer faltered just within the gateway. Then, with truculent swagger, "I want my daughter!" he declared vociferously.

Brentwick peered mildly over his glasses, first at Calendar, then at Kirkwood. His glance lingered a moment on the young man's honest eyes and swung back to Calendar.

"My good man," he said, with subtle tolerance, "will you be pleased to take yourself off—to the devil if you like? Or shall I take the trouble to interest the police?"

He removed one fine and fragile hand from a pocket of the flowered dressing gown long enough to jerk it significantly toward the nearer street corner.

"Thunderstruck, Calendar glanced heavily in the indicated direction. A blue coated body was to be seen approaching with measured stride, diffusing upon the still evening air an impression of incalculable self contentment.

Calendar's fleshy lips parted and closed without a sound. He banged the gate behind him and waddled off to join the captain, who already, with praiseworthy native prudence, had fallen back upon his cab.

Suddenly extracting money from his pocket, he paid off his driver and in company with Stryker trudged in morose silence down the street.

Brentwick touched Kirkwood's arm and drew him into the house.

CHILD'S DREADFUL SKIN TROUBLES

Had Sixty Boils when but Six Months Old—Was Annually Attacked by a Humor—It Looked Red Like a Scald and Spread Over Half Her Head—Both Troubles are Cured.

NO PRAISE TOO HIGH FOR THE CUTICURA REMEDIES

"When my little Vivian was about six months old, her papa had a boil on his forehead. At that time the child was covered with boils. I suppose in scratching it, her own head became infected. It broke out in boils, one after another. She had about sixty in all and I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her of them entirely. Then, being afraid it was scald, I spoke to our doctor. He gave me a powder which dried it up, but soon after it broke out behind her ears. They cracked half way around and the humor spread up on to her head until, on several occasions, it was nearly all covered. The humor looked like a scald, very red with a sticky clear fluid coming from it. This occurred every year. I think it was toward the spring, I always bathed it with warm water and Cuticura Soap and applied Cuticura Ointment which never failed to heal it up. The first time it broke out was when she was six years old. It became so bad that I was discouraged. Then I procured a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent which soon cleared it out of her blood. I continued the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and the Resolvent until she was perfectly well. She is now about eight years old and has never been troubled in the last two years. We also find Cuticura Resolvent a good spring medicine and we are just giving the children Cuticura Resolvent Pills as a tonic. We do not think any one can praise Cuticura Remedies too highly. Mrs. M. A. Schwan, 674 Spring Wells Ave., Detroit, Mich., Feb. 24, 1908."

J. Pluvius and his little water cart did a rushing business over the Pennsylvania and West Virginia league circuit yesterday, the dampness affecting all of the scheduled games here. While it cleared up an hour before it was time to play yesterday, the game here had to be called off because the legacy of dampness left by the rain prevented any possibility of playing ball. Old Sol didn't remain long, either, so even had the hold been in shape the game would have only gone a few innings. This is the second time this season a game has been postponed here because of wet grounds. Fairmont is the only team which has a back date on the schedule to be made up by a double-header in the future. Charlottesville is the only town in the circuit where the game has been postponed. They will play a double bill in that village at a subsequent visit. Manager Sweeney was not sorry it rained. His crimples need the rest. Chubb was in bad shape after Monday afternoon's game at Uniontown. His work made giving him considerable pain. He has been working almost ten hours of late. Friends of the team were sorry the game was called off because they wanted the boys to have an opportunity to redeem themselves after the exhibition in Uniontown. While there is little question that Uniontown would have won the game in any event, they were hitting like flounders. The Chorus played listless ball. An even break should satisfy the fans, however, as it is the best any of them did Monday. And, too, Fairmont did the same thing as Uniontown; lost in the morning only to come back and win the ball in the afternoon. There is a rumor that Manager Macfadyen of the Chorus will recall Morgan before the Chorus leaves town this evening. Morgan was loaned to the team when an outfielder was badly needed. Fans here would regret to see Morgan leave. While not a spectacular player, he has demonstrated the ability of a player. Morgan would be valuable to the Chorus through his ability to cover an infield position and go behind the bat. He is very versatile, but doesn't make much noise while doing his work. He sets an example others might emulate.

Manager Macfadyen did not accompany the Chorus here as he was given a few days' leave of absence to visit his home. William H. Zellars, Jr., accompanied the team and is looking after Macfadyen's interests. The Chorus manager expects to join the team here.

Mr. Zellars could not say what would be done concerning Morgan at this time as it is a matter between Macfadyen and Sweeney. The Chorus, he said, have been going bad, but will be well up in the race when the break goes the other way. In spite of the weather and the ordinary showing of the team, the attendance in Charlottesville is very good. It will grow when the team strikes a winning stride.

Baseball Notes. Hugh S. Fullerton, the noted Chicago baseball writer, has an interesting article in the current issue of the American Magazine. He refers to several famous catches and refers to the great play made by Bill Lange, since retired in Washington during the season of 1905.

The writer well remembers this famous catch—for it is famous and remembered by many to this day—although Mr. Fullerton is in error in a minor detail. According to Mr. Fullerton, Selbach hit to deep center, the Chicago outfielder ran swiftly to the fence and kicked a few panels off as he turned a somersault and grabbed the sphere. Lange didn't get that near the fence, but he chased that ball from his place not far from second base to within a few yards of the fence. He turned, stuck out his paw, and rolled over several times. Those spectators in the bleachers, opposite the point Lange tumbled, did not realize he had held the ball until his gloved paw emerged from a tangled mass of humanity and the sphere was safely pocketed.

It was a gloomy day for baseball, that afternoon Lange added another laurel to his brow. The sky was overcast and rain checks had been issued. The game went 11 innings, it was the first of a doubleheader. The second contest was called about the sixth inning because of darkness. Old "Pop" Jensen was with the Chicago team then, while Washington had such stars as Win Mercer, who committed suicide some years afterwards in San Francisco, Gene Demontreville, still playing a grand game at short down South, Al Seibach, Tom Browne, now umpiring in the New York State league, Dick Pashen and "Phono Legs" Cartwright. That was in the days of the old 12 club league, but Washington was usually as successful in landing at the bottom as she is now.

AUTOS START FOR SEATTLE
New York Mayor Sends Them Away on Their Long Endurance Run.
New York, June 2.—Five motor cars competing for a $2,000 trophy offered by M. Robert Guggenbelle started from the New York city hall on a 4,000-mile endurance run to Seattle. Mayor McClellan sent them away with a gold-mounted starting pistol at precisely the instant that President Taft pressed the button in Washington that officially opened the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in Seattle.

Johnson and Kaufman Sign Articles.
New York, June 2.—Formal articles of agreement for a fight in which Al Kaufman of California will endeavor to wrest the world's championship honors from Jack Johnson, the Texas negro pugilist, were drawn up and signed here.

Carrigan Has Blood Poisoning.
Philadelphia, June 2.—Catcher Carrigan of the Boston American league baseball team has been sent home by Manager Lake because of a serious case of blood poisoning. Carrigan was injured about two weeks ago when an opposing player accidentally spiked him while sliding to the home plate.

Pitcher Chappelle Gets Another Ride.
Cincinnati, June 2.—Pitcher Chappelle, purchased from the Boston National league team by Cincinnati ten days ago, was sold today to the Rochester club of the Eastern league.

Long Service in Pulpit.
Allentown, Pa., June 2.—The Rev. Joseph Specht, who was a minister of the Evangelical church for more than fifty years, died here.

ARBITRATION SPURNED

Lake Carriers Refuse to Treat with Strikers—Negotiations End.
Cleveland, June 2.—So far as the officers and members of the Lake Carriers' association are concerned, the strike of the lake seamen will continue. This determination became apparent when the representatives of the boards of arbitration from six states bordering upon the Great Lakes met here with Seth Low of New York, president of the National Civic federation, in an effort to bring about a conference between the officers of the Lake Carriers' association and the strike leaders.

Conferences were held with prominent members of the association. They informed the mediators that they would not waver from the attitude of the association, and that the association would in no wise modify its position on the subject of employing labor.

Facing this situation the arbitrators issued a statement in which they said that any further efforts to effect a reconciliation would be futile.

ACCUSED OF MURDER
Woman and Boarder Are Charged With Crime.
Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 2.—At the conclusion of a coroner's inquest to investigate the death of Anthony Daniels, whose charred remains were found in the ruins of a fire which destroyed his home near here, warrants were issued for the arrest of the wife of the deceased and Andrew Olsheski, who formerly boarded at the Daniels home, charging them with murder. Both were committed without bail.

Testimony offered at the inquest was to the effect that before his death Daniels had often quarreled with his wife, and it was also shown that Olsheski, about one month ago, gave him a severe beating. The allegation being made is that Olsheski and the woman murdered the latter's husband and then set fire to the house to cover up their crime.

WIFE GOES MAD
Evangelist's Spouse, Abandoned, Is Taken to Asylum.
Wooster, O., June 2.—Becoming insane over the alleged desertion of her husband, a Syrian evangelist, Mrs. Clara Gorgas Jacobs was taken to the Massillon hospital.

Elias Jacobs came to Wooster university two years ago to finish his studies. He met the simple country girl of sixteen, and won her love. He is said, refused to marry her. She had a warrant sworn out for his arrest, and Mayor Van Nest married them last November. In April, Jacobs, it is said, mysteriously disappeared, and the wife came back to Wayne county, going to the infirmary with her child.

LYNCH VICTIMS MANY
More Than 3,000 Persons Have Thus Met Death, Says Mrs. Barnett.
New York, June 2.—That 3,251 men, women and children have been lynched in this country in the last quarter of a century was the assertion of Mrs. Ida Wells Barnett at the National Negro conference in this city.

Asking why this was permitted by a Christian nation, Mrs. Barnett quoted John Temple Graves as saying that the mob stands as the most potent bulwark between the women of the south and such a carnival of crime as would precipitate the annihilation of the negro race. All know that this is untrue.

TO VISIT MISSIONARIES
Colonel Roosevelt Inspects Schools at Kijabe Tomorrow.
Nairobi, June 2.—Theodore Roosevelt is going to visit the station, at Kijabe, of the Africa inland mission, an American organization. He probably will make the journey tomorrow.

The Africa inland mission is independent and self-controlling in its field, though represented by home councils in Philadelphia and London. The purpose of the mission is the evangelization, so far as possible, of the tribes in the interior of Africa who have never heard the gospel.

Harmful Medicines
cannot be sold by any druggist in America today except under penalty of the law. This is what the Pure Food and Drugs Law has accomplished for the people. Such standard preparation, however, as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for thirty years has stood the test of time and complies with all conditions of this law, will continue to be sold by every reputable druggist in the land.

The Maximum of Shoe Worth at $4.00

OXFORDS ought to be more carefully chosen than the winter shoe for they receive an abundance of hard knocks that the winter shoe escapes. Outdoor life is a lot more wearing on footwear than the quiet indoor life of winter.

We specialize on Oxfords at four dollars, both in men's and women's models. The bulk of our business in low cuts is done at that price and our shoe business is more than doubled in the past three years. That's absolute proof of the betterness of our Oxfords at this price. Specializing at one particular price gains you many superior points of style and quality that are not to be found ordinarily at this price. We desire to point out these qualities to you at your convenience, you'll be convinced.
